Google Toolbar PageRank officially goes dark

A month or so after Google told us they would be removing the 1-to-10 PageRank scores from their toolbar feeds, they removed it this past Friday.

Google's Matt Cutts: No More PageRank Updates This Year

Barry Schwartz on October 7, 2013 at 9:48 am

Google's head of search spam, Matt Cutts, said on Twitter yesterday that Google won't be pushing out a new Google Toolbar PageRank update this year.

Ottobre 2013!

Niels Bosch asked on Twitter if we should expect an update to PageRank before 2014. In response to that, Matt Cutts said, "I would be surprised if that happened."

It has now been 8 months since the last Google Toolbar PageRank update. In fact, the last update was on February 4, 2013 and honestly, I think PageRank is finally dead – at least the Toolbar PageRank.

Giuseppe Liguori ciao michelangelo, i parametri si basano su una scala logaritmica da 0 a 100 (quindi un calo da 60 a 50 è molto più ampia di un calo da 50 a 40).
Sommariamente i parametri che prendiamo in considerazione sono un mix pesato tra: n. keyword posizionate, volumi di ricerca delle key posizionate, distribuzione delle keyword, competizione delle keyword, trend degli ultimi mesi (salita o discesa) ed in minima parte alcuni aspetti social. Ce ne saranno sicuramente altri che ho dimenticato

Concludendo (2)!

Gary Illyes Traditionally, webspam algorithms demoted whole sites. With this one we managed to devalue spam instead of demoting AND it's also more granular AND it's realtime. Once the rollout is complete, I strongly believe many people will be happier, and that makes me happy
